It was great connecting with you - I am eager to see how this can be put on paper that aligns in the best interest of us and the seller. After further discussion with our lender, for an outright sale to be successful, the total rent can not cover expenses of owning the property. What we can do if your seller isn't completely opposed to it is providing a unique strategy that enables a large portion of equity to be leveraged at closing in a few short weeks in addition to a monthly payout with a quick payout in the near future -
